

Mrs Redfern

Music Lead

I have always had a love for music from being part of the school choir, to learning to play the recorder then progressing to playing the flute, to attending live concerts and music festivals today. The beauty of music is that there are elements for everyone. Whether this be children learning to play a specific musical instrument and learning the notation, or whether it is children working together and collaboratively working towards the same aim of making a creative piece of music. It is a 'hands on' lesson where everyone can join in, feel creative and express themselves freely.
